

As of late, Buty Jordan Sklep Brand's Heiress Collection has been at the top of our list in regards to consistent heat being dropped exclusively for children and women and the brand's list of dope product continues with the Air Jordan V Premium Heiress 'Metallic Field'. At times, we get a little envious but, by dropping dope and exclusive colorways for the ladies in our lives opens an entirely new market up for the Jumpman with that said, check out the latest of the Heiress Collection in the images provided above.

Today, the Jumpman unveiled the Buty Jordan Damskie, drawing inspiration from the Jordan 2 and infusing it with the high performance technology necessary for the basketball court. Utilizing high-tenacity yarns in the flyknit upper, the flyknit on the toebox is also crafted as such to resemble the Jordan II. Other features include a hidden lace system, the infamous wings logo on the tongue (also reminiscent of the Jordan II) and either a Leather Snakeskin or Suede panel. On the rear of the shoe is a grooved heel counter that also draws inspiration from the Jordan II, but also from a Ferrari Supercar. Lastly, is a midsole that combines forefront Zoom Air, a Flight Plate and Zoom air in the heel; a combination we first saw in the Jordan 32. All of that will sit on a Herringbone Traction Panel, to provide a unique level of on-court support.

Dubbed the Barato Air Max Venta Colorway, after the Asian Basketball Tour of the same name, the shoe features an overlay swoosh design on a navy blue upper, alternating tongue logos, and a braille-esque design on the heel and heel counter. Rounding out the shoe is the bright orange midsole, and the tinted orange translucent outsole.