Product Design and Colors

One of the new Jordans today, the Air Jordan 11 Win Like 96 Retro High Flyknit boasts of an exterior that makes it look “knitted” instead of a smooth leather body.

The wolf grey coloring is fairly familiar for most people nowadays, the shade hitting that perfect balance of casual and clean. Needless today, the wolf grey approach makes it very easy to seamlessly include the shoes in your wardrobe for practically any occasion.

The fact that the shoes make use of a brown contrasting color helps it stand out even further. The brown can be found on the quarter panel in the image of a Swoosh logo, beautifully covering a large portion of the kicks. The Wings logo is done in the same color and takes a prominent place a few inches on top of the Swoosh. Up front, you’ve got the Cheap Air Max logo in prominent display, still in the same embossed brown coloring. The outsole of the kicks is also done in a shade of brown with beautifully ribbed portions for that added grip. The midsole is clean and unassuming in its whiteness which is as simple as it can get.

The laces are really the downside of the Buty Jordan Sklep Retro High Flyknit because they’re done in the same shade of grey as the rest of the shoes. Why is this bad thing? Despite the fact that the overall look works out pretty well, wolf grey shoelaces can be tough to find in the market ▪ unless you go to a specialized Air Jordan store of course. Otherwise, you might have a hard time replacing those laces so better take good care of them.
