

Aerie wholesale Plus Size Lingerie Makes the Best Mall-Brand Underwear

It has corset skirts sets taken the better part of my adulthood to find underwear that I felt comfortable with someone else seeing me in. I'm not 100 percent comfortable with my lil' muffin top, so I'm always on the hunt for clothing that hugs my soft bits without accentuating the divot between the crest of my upper thigh and the beginning of my adorable stomach.

I've spent countless hours trying on scores of underthings that seemed to hang seamlessly on firm bodies but would get lost in my natural creases, creating the illusion that I was wearing a lace merkin.

The unexpected frontrunner? Aerie by American Eagle - yep, the same brand that brought you your seventh-grade fake sports team hoodie and ultra-wash denim is my favorite place to shop for affordable, cute undies.

What's kept me coming back to the mall for just a few more pairs is one incredible feature: a wide, soft, comfortable waistband in all the essential styles. The Thong, Cheeky, and Bikini all come equipped with a lacy waistband that doesn't pinch natural creases; instead, it softly hugs your hips.