

At a Live Q&A session, Drop Jordan Lavar Ball will join his sons Melo and Lonzo in creating his own sneaker. If you thought Melo's $495 show was crazy expensive, Lavar's will have you losing your mind. At $1500, Lavar's shoe is definitely exuberantly priced. His justification? "Cause I'm gonna design 'em and they gonna be flyyy ... my bad, they gonna be baller-sized". If that doesn't get you in a rush for your wallet, what else will? Still, his wild comments and overpriced shoes have gotten Big Baller Brand co-signs from Jay Z and the Game, so why stop now?

For fans of the Buty Jordan Sklep, there's, fortunately, plenty of options for you to choose from. The 1 has seen a number of colorways in various material mixes and styles. Though it doesn't quite match the hype of OG releases, it's still nice to have some options. In light of that, this upcoming "Los Primeros" iteration is a welcome sight.

The upper on this special edition features a Vans-reminiscent tonal upper, Cheap Air Max dresse d in what look to be laser-etched graphics. The designs cover the shoes upper, giving it quite the unique look for an Air Jordan 1. Though it's all Black on the lateral panels, the insoles, toe box, and tongue carry some colorful art work. This seems to be courtesy of Brazilian artist Thales Fernando whose alias, POMB, is etched onto the sneakers' heel tabs.
