

The Drop Jordan series has garnered excellent feedback from buyers that it is not surprising how Air Jordan managed to release several versions of the same silhouette. This year, we welcome the Air Jordan 1 Retro High Flyknit done in Wolf Grey coloring.

The wolf Air Jordan 11 Win Like 96 coloring is fairly familiar for most people nowadays, the shade hitting that perfect balance of casual and clean. Needless today, the wolf grey approach makes it very easy to seamlessly include the shoes in your wardrobe for practically any occasion. The outsole of the kicks is also done in a shade of brown with beautifully ribbed portions for that added grip. The midsole is clean and unassuming in its whiteness which is as simple as it can get.

The Buty Jordan Sklep that the shoes make use of a brown contrasting color helps it stand out even further. The brown can be found on the quarter panel in the image of a Swoosh logo, beautifully covering a large portion of the kicks. The Wings logo is done in the same color and takes a prominent place a few inches on top of the Swoosh. Up front, you have got the Nike Air logo in prominent display, still in the same embossed brown coloring.

The Cheap Air Max are really the downside of the Air Jordan 1 Retro High Flyknit because they are done in the same shade of grey as the rest of the shoes. Why is this bad thing? Despite the fact that the overall look works out pretty well, wolf grey shoelaces can be tough to find in the market unless you go to a specialized Air Jordan store of course. Otherwise, you might have a hard time replacing those laces so better take good care of them.